CAMINO

Production Companies:	PELÍCULAS PENDELTON, MEDIAPRO
Director:	Javier Fesser
Producers:	Luis Manso & Jaume Roures
Script:	Javier Fesser
Cast:	Nerea Camacho, Carmen Elías, Mariano Venancio, Manuela Vellés
Year:	2008
Genre:	Drama

Synopsis

Pamplona 2001. 12-year-old Camino is dying in hospital. Surrounded by family, friends and hospital staff, she provides an almost supernatural example of serene death. Then, in her final moments, something extraordinary happens. Camino may yet escape death... Madrid, a few months earlier. Charming, intelligent schoolgirl Camino is very close to her mother Gloria, an Opus Dei supernumerary who has drummed into her the faith "without concessions" which is now central to her life. As Camino enters adolescence, she feels the first stirrings of young love; and is diagnosed with a rare and aggressive tumor.

Helpless in the face of this tragedy, her father is the only other person who knows about the platonic love story unfolding in his daughter's heart. His humanity stands in stark contrast to Gloria's conviction that everything that is happening to Camino is because God has chosen her. The relationship between mother and father grows increasingly fragile as the girl's state worsens.

Camino is admitted to an Opus Dei-run clinic, where her plight is interpreted as a manifestation of sanctity and a valuable example for a generation of young people increasingly isolated from the Church. But for Camino, pain and suffering are overshadowed by love – love for someone she can neither see nor touch.

Inspired by real events, CAMINO is the extraordinary story of a brief, brave life set against the mysterious, cloistered and little-seen world of the Opus Dei. A heart-reading and controversial drama.

Synopsis

This documentary talks about the exhibition that under the same name, Goya in Times of War, was held at El Prado museum in the spring 2008. The artist narrates through his paintings, drawings and prints the historical events that he lived. As if we were in front of a graphical feature of the time, Goya in Times of War takes us to the tragedies of that 1808. Now that 200 years have passed we are also able to assess the radical modernity of Goya's art.

Producers:	Ana Amigo
Script:	Manuel Gómez Pereira & Salvador García Ruiz
Cast:	Álvaro Cervantes, Clara Lago, Nadia de Santiago
Year:	2008
Genre:	Drama

Synopsis

Sandra and David have been the very best friends since childhood. In the very narrow society of a small provincial town, he is the little kid who defies all the bigger boys. Hardly the model student, he's as rowdy, and though something of a loner, is very charming. She seems a good girl, but deep down, really deep down... she doesn't know whether she really is. David's rebelliousness rubs off on her, since the mere fact that she's David's friend is reason enough for the grown-ups around her to be scandalised. By the time they get to adolescence, it's only logical that their friendship should become something deeper. But something unexpected happens to them both, separately, and changes the course of their lives: she is forced to become a survivor, and he, incapable of betraying his friend, becomes the holder of a secret. Together, they forge a relationship of complicity, something which they don't need to couch in words, which acquires a very adult dimension, though they are still mere children, who hardly know anything. They love each other, with childlike innocence and cruelty, though with bodies that foreshadow the advent of adulthood. But, at the same time, the secret gradually grows into something very major, more and more difficult to hold, more and more difficult to understand... Everything is more or less fine until Sandra is driven by curiosity to attempt to cross the threshold of that secret, to find out, to get to know the only thing her friend never told her. It will have fatal consequences.

Synopsis

A rumble in the darkness. Shortly afterwards, light starts to fill the screen and the rumble takes shape. Until the water that surges from the earth reaches the exterior. There, the river begins its story: "Here I am born, over and over again...". From this moment on, the river is a character, with its presence, voice and viewpoint. It tells us of moments engraved on its memory, of the times it speaks with Martin, a farmer... As it watches his life. Their meetings allow us to see how the river passes, as does Martin's life.
